

WAC/WID Program

The Writing Across the Curriculum (WAC) and Writing-in-the-Disciplines (WID) Program at Daytona State College emphasizes the link between literacy education and disciplinary study. The WAC/WID Program is a partnership among UCF and DSC faculty, administrators, and the DSC-UCF Writing Center whose ultimate goal is to equip students with the literacy aptitude necessary for a world that demands strong communication skills in a range of disciplines, in myriad genres, and for varied audiences. Pursuant to this goal, WAC/WID at Daytona State College offers faculty and staff several opportunities for professional development throughout the year.

There are four major components to the WAC/WID Professional Development Program

- Faculty Mentorship Program
- Writing Fellows Program
- Online Program: Active Learning, Critical Thinking, and Writing
- Teaching and Learning Retreat

Who can Participate in the WAC/WID Professional Development Program?

The program is open to all faculty and staff at Daytona State College. Participants who complete all segments of the program are eligible to become Faculty Fellows in the WAC/WID Program. Faculty Fellows serve as campus leaders through peer mentorship and program facilitation.
