Leonard R. Lempel’s Biography

Leonard R. Lempel (Len) received his B.A. in history at the University of Akron, and his M.A. and Ph.D. in social science from Syracuse University’s Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs. He is currently a professor of history at Daytona State College (formerly Daytona Beach Community College) and teaches courses in American and African American history. Before joining the faculty of DBCC in 1996, he was a professor at Bethune-Cookman College for sixteen years. Len has numerous publications and has made several presentations at professional conferences and community forums on the history of Daytona Beach and neighboring communities, with a focus on the African American community.

Len is a member of the Southern Historical Association, and serves on the board of directors of the Florida Historical Society and the Halifax Historical Society. Also, he is president elect of the FHS, and editor of the HHS’s journal, The Halifax Herald.
